Experience It! Cathedral of Santa Maria del Fiore

Standing tall among the many architectural wonders of Florence is the imposing Santa Maria del Fiore Cathedral, also known as the "Duomo," the third largest cathedral in the world. The exterior is a colorful mix of pink, white and green marble; important artwork, statues and intricate stained glass adorn the interior. This famous landmark, designed by Arnolfo di Cambio, began construction in 1296. In the 15th century, the cathedral's world-renowned dome was added, a creation of architect Filippo Brunelleschi. This architectural wonder was created without using a centering support for the masonry. This is a feat that has not been achieved by many, particularly with one of its size. It is still the biggest dome in the world where this technique was used. It weighs an estimated 37,000 tons and it's said that a staggering four million bricks were used.
